The planet weighs 13.1 septillion pounds and has a perimeter of about 25,000 miles. The distance from the North Pole to the South Pole is more than 12,000 miles, and there are endless natural and man-made treasures in between. We have about 200 million square miles to explore and another 4,000 miles to central Earth. With so much land to explore, we can say we've only discovered a quarter of the planet. We discovered rotten elements that took billions of years to decay in the small amount of earth we discovered. We have found fossils of all kinds of animals imaginable, and new species are always being discovered. We know that the planet is experiencing climate change so severely that it destroyed all life and endured meteorite impacts so much that they destroyed all life again. There was a time when more than one species of people roamed the world, but we're the last ones standing. The planet has a turbulent history, but after all this death and destruction, we have a beautiful Earth on our hands. lakes, islands and valleys. What do you know about the planet? Take this test and see if some basic world can pass the trinks. Copyright © 2021 InfoSpace Holdings, LLC, a System1 Company Image: Sturti/E+/Getty Images Year 1953 I've only seen major developments in the United States, but almost all over the world. Baby Boomers are still born, Lucille Ball was the silver screen and international relations as tense takeover as ever. The British royal family, like the Soviet Union, was changing hands. The wars were coming to an end, and color television was finally selling for over a thousand dollars. This special year of the 1950s saw no shortage of fun slang, fun TV and more fun and creative food. It wasn't all serious peace talks and the testing of hydrogen bombs. Need some examples? We've got you! Perhaps you might be interested to know that Woody Tim Allen from Toy Story was born this year. You know who else was born this year? Pierce Brosnan was going to play James Bond. While this may not seem interesting on its own, its birth was the first James Bond book published in the same year. What a fun coincidence! All that said, we may seem to have said a lot about this year, but there is a lot to know about pop culture and politics of the year. Can you pass this 1953 trivia test? Take it now to find out! During this test, we want to see how good you are at a basic trivia test. You may think you deserve a place on a local Trivia night, but is it really? From geography to food to writers, there are some things you need to know without thinking too much. After all, pop culture swelled the idea of bringing everything to mind with its repetitive nature. Even if you don't pay attention, you are likely to get a random fact or information. We're just wondering how much it's been holding up over the years. To respond to our nagging curiosity, we have designed a basic trivia quiz that will challenge the sense of trivia. While some of our responses may seem specific, others may require you to use our tips and think a little. You should never struggle with our average mental questions, but are you above average? Test what you think you know with this quiz, and we'll let you know where you stand. Depends on your brain's permission? There is only one really basic way to learn - quiz!
